TOPIC -----

This article describes the LocalTalk Interface Board manufactured by DayStar Digital, Inc.

DISCUSSION -----

The LT200 LocalTalk Interface Board allows IBM PC, PS/2, and Macintosh computers to coexist on a LocalTalk network. The LT200 is a card that fits into the expansion slot of a PC or PS/2. Users can plug directly into the LocalTalk network and have access to LaserWriters, Macintoshes and other devices on the network.

The LT200 includes printer utilities that allow PCs to print to PostScript printers.
